To Support Grower Prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department announced Wednesday it will support grower prices of 1967 crop rice at a national average of $4.55 per hundredweight, up five cents from last year's national average.

The department said, however, that the actual support rates for most individual varieties will be only one cent a hundredweight above the 1966 actual national average support rates.

These lesser increases for individual varieties reflects the fact, officials said, that rice crops have been higher than average in quality.

Rice is being grown this year under federal acreage allotments and marketing quotas designed to prevent overproduction.

Legislative Pay Suit Is Filed

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Sen. Morrell Cathright of Pine Bluff said Wednesday that bills introduced in the Arkansas House and Senate were designed to bring a test suit over whether legislators could be paid per diem for an extended session of the legislature.

Atty. Gen. Joe Purcell issued an opinion last week that lawmakers could not be paid during an extension.

The identical bills would appropriate $4,000 for the House and $1,400 for the Senate for per diem expenses covering two days of an extended session.

Cathright said this was not indicative of how long an extended session might last, but would merely bring the matter before the courts. He said he had hired a lawyer to file a test suit on the matter.

Sen. Dan White of Fort Smith introduced a bill to abolish the state Liquefield Petroleum Gas Board and transfer its powers and duties to the Public Service Commission.

Other measures introduced in the legislature included:

- A bill merging the McRae and Booneville tuberculosis Sanatoriums by transferring McRae patients and records to Booneville by July 1.
- A bill regulating foreign corporations that enter into licensing agreements with Arkansas corporations and individuals.
- A bill requiring all children to be immunized against poliomyelitis, diphtheria, tetanus, pertussis (whooping cough) and red measles before entering public or private schools.
- SENATE
- A resolution calling for a constitutional amendment that would limit reappointment of the state legislature to once every 10 years.
- A bill that would authorize the state Savings and Loan Association Board to permit state-chartered savings and loan Associations to operate under the same rules applicable to federally-chartered savings and loans.
- A bill to provide that $350,000 from the bonds issued to finance construction of the new state Revenue Department building could be used to remodel the department's old offices in the state capital.
- Surfing Terms
- A surfer "hangs 10" when he moves to the front of his board and sticks his toes over the nose. If only one foot protrudes, he "hangs five."

Johnson Go Home Sentence Quashed
KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — The High Court of Appeal today quashed a two-month jail sentence given a Malaysian Chinese youth who wrote "Johnson go home" on the walls of the post office the day before President Johnson's visit last October.

"Anyone is free to write 'Johnson go home'," Judge Raja Azlan Shah said. "The defendant should have been charged for damaging property."

American Sentenced by Czechs

By HANNS NEUERBOURG
PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — A Massachusetts travel agent sentenced to eight years imprisonment for heading a spy ring 16 years ago is expected to ask for suspension of his sentence and expulsion from his native Czechoslovakia.

Vladimir Kazan-Komarek, 42, a naturalized American from Wellesley, Mass., displayed no emotion when the Communist court gave its verdict Wednesday behind closed doors.

"He is satisfied with the verdict," his local lawyer, Dr. Václav Patracek, told a newsman. "We will not appeal it."

Under Czechoslovak law, however, the defense can ask the court to suspend the balance of the sentence and expel the defendant from the country. Informed sources said such a motion would probably be filed at once.

Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., wired the Czechoslovak ambassador to the United States, Karel Buda, asking him "to impress upon your government the importance of suspending the sentence and the expulsion of Mr. Kazan-Komarek from Czechoslovakia." Some U.S. officials in Washington said the case would provide ammunition for opponents of the Johnson administration's efforts to improve relations with East European Communist governments.

Kazan-Komarek's father-in-law, Donald Hunt of Wellesley, said the family had expected the verdict but was "still optimistic."

Kazan-Komarek, head of a travel agency in Cambridge, Mass., was hauled off a Soviet airliner last Oct. 31 when it made an unscheduled stop in Prague on a flight from Moscow to Paris.

The Soviets and the Czechoslovaks said the landing was made for "technical" reasons. The U.S. State Department expressed doubt the plane would have landed at Prague—nearly 100 miles south of the Moscow-Paris flight route—unless there was connivance to deliver Kazan-Komarek to the Prague authorities. The State Department filed a strong protest with the Czechoslovaks and retaliated by denying visas to most applicants from Czechoslovakia.

The three-judge court convicted Kazan-Komarek of organizing and directing an antistate group as the paid agent of a foreign intelligence service from late 1948, after the Communists took over Czechoslovakia, until December 1950, Czech sources said the spy ring was American.

Groundhog Sees His Shadow

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Pennsylvania's furry forecasters, the groundhogs, reportedly saw their shadows at sunup today and retreated to their burrows for another six weeks of winter — to absolutely no one's surprise.

According to tradition, the groundhog comes out of his burrow Feb. 2 and looks around. If he sees his shadow, he goes underground for another six weeks and winter hangs on that long.

Since winter will last officially until March 21 anyway, today's report was no surprise.

Members of Slumbering Groundhog Lodge in Quarryville, in south-central Pennsylvania, said they saw their groundhog at 7:14 a.m. Members of the lodge donned their traditional long white night shirts, top hats and stalked through the woods waving canes, wands and shepherd's crooks before finding their quarry.

In western Pennsylvania, members of the Punxsutawney Groundhog Club said their favorite — Punxsutawney Phil — appeared at 7:29 a.m. and quickly retreated into his lodge on Gobbler's Knob.

Revenues Short of Estimates

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller, pleading with legislators to hold the line on spending, said Wednesday he foresees a need for a special legislative session within a year because revenues will be about $4 million short of anticipations.

Rockefeller told the Joint Budget Committee that revenues were increasing at a rate of about five per cent while projections for this fiscal year had been based on an expected increase of 7.1 or 7.2 per cent. He said he planned to present a budget message to a joint session of the General Assembly in about 10 days.

The governor said he would discuss the state's financial structure and present his view on appropriation bills at this time.

A special session will be needed, he said, even if the General Assembly extends its current session. Rockefeller gave no definite date for such a session but hinted that it might be good to have one following a report by the state penitentiary study commission. The commission is to make its report before Jan. 1.

Rockefeller said revenues were rising but not at the rate predicted earlier. However, he said there was no reason for anyone to panic.

His staff is completing work on 71 budgets he asked the committee to delay action on.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson told Congress today he is making an immediate allocation of two million tons of grain worth nearly $150 million to help India meet emergency food needs.

In a special message, Johnson recommended that congress approve a commitment to share fully in the international effort to meet India's food grain deficit.

He said India will need total deliveries of 10 million tons of food grains this year worth about $725 million.

Rockefeller said, he said he would begin sending these recommendations to the committee today.

He also urged adoption of his recommendation of about $37 million for the budgets of the University of Arkansas and state-supported colleges.

Meanwhile, the Commission on Co-Ordination of Higher Education Finance asked the committee to restore cuts from their $41 million budget made by the governor.

Rockefeller said that if the reduction was restored the money would have to be taken from someone else.

He also said he planned to offer legislation for an administration department to provide the General Assembly with a status report of the state's financial posture and other matters between legislative sessions.

Bicycle sales in America totaled nearly six million in 1965.

Investigation of Apollo Accident

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The space agency's deputy administrator meets today with the board of review that reportedly is far from pinpointing the cause of the mysterious fire that killed the three Apollo 1 astronauts.

Dr. Robert C. Seamans of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration files here to receive an interim report on the flash fire that raged through the Apollo spacecraft during a launch pad test last Friday.

Killed in the fiery mishap were Air Force Lt. Col. Virgil I. Grissom and Edward H. White II and Navy Lt. Cmdr. Roger B. Chaffee.

To aid the investigators, a twin of the ill-fated Apollo was flown here Wednesday night from the North American Aviation Co. in Downey, Calif.

If necessary, the board of review will place Apollo 1 and its duplicate side-by-side — meticulously dismantling both, comparing them part by part.

The board reportedly has found no major suspect area after questioning witnesses and studying data radioed from the spacecraft during the test Friday.

Among many things, the board is considering the possibility that some foreign, highly-inflammable substance such as grease or paper might accidentally have been left near a heat source in the cabin.

In a 100 per cent oxygen environment like that in Apollo 1 on a 5-2 vote only hours after the flash point of any combustible is much lower than it would be under normal atmospheric conditions.

Throughout Wednesday, technicians carefully removed parts of the launch escape tower and other pieces in preparation for taking the charred craft from atop its Saturn I rocket on Launch Pad 34.

Wednesday night, they removed debris from the blackened cabin seats, piece by piece, cataloging each bit.

The House Armed Services committee Wednesday named a two-man subcommittee to investigate both the Cape Kennedy fire and a similar oxygen-fed blaze that killed two airmen Tuesday in San Antonio, Tex.

Appointed were Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, D-N.Y., and Rep. Durward G. Hall, R-Mo. They plan to fly to Cape Kennedy Friday and then to the Manned Spacecraft Center, Houston, Tex., and to the School of Aerospace Medicine in San Antonio.

ABC, AT&T Merger Is Delayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission, acting at the Justice Department's request, has ordered a delay in the proposed $20-billion merger of American Broadcasting Co. and International Telephone & Telegraph Corp.

The department says the merger could have antitrust implications.

The action came Wednesday

Thursday, February 2, 1967

on a 5-2 vote only hours after the flash point of any combustible is much lower than it would be under normal atmospheric conditions.

The commission gave the department until Feb. 15 to state the precise issues it wants considered and the witnesses it wants called. The order set Feb. 23 as the deadline for ABC and IT&T to present evidence favorable to the merger.

The order indicated the FCC would reach its final decision sometime after March 6, the deadline it set for final receipt of evidence from the department.

In ordering the delay, the FCC chastised the Justice Department for tardiness in raising its objections.

The commission originally approved the merger last Dec. 31, one day after receiving a department letter saying it was not considering court action to block the consolidation on antitrust grounds. The merger originally was scheduled to take effect Wednesday.

The department on Jan. 18 asked FCC reconsideration of the case, saying it believed the commission had inadequately considered all aspects.

The proposed merger would involve a stock transaction of between $350 million and $400 million and would make the consolidated company the 20th largest in the United States in total assets.

Wedding Vows Are Repeated

MR. AND MRS. HARRY STEPHENS

The wedding of Miss Sharon Ann Frith and Harry Stephens was solemnized at 3:30 p.m., Saturday, January 21 in the Garrett Memorial Baptist Church. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. David Frith and the late Mr. Frith, and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Harry G. Stephens of Magnolia and the late Mr. Stephens.

Before an altar of greenery and burning tapers the Rev. Clyde Johnson performed the double-ring ceremony. Mrs. Wade Warren, organist, played a program of pre-nuptial music, and the traditional wedding marches were used.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Danny Frith. She was attired in a street-length dress of white bonded crepe. Sequins trimmed the rolled collar and the cuffs on the long sleeves. Her hat was a pillbox with a short veil, and the bride carried white roses.

Mrs. Richard Stine of Texark-ana was the bride's only attendant. She wore a bonded crepe dress of apple green with a matching pillbox hat, and she had a cascade bouquet of red roses.

Byron Floyd of Crossett served the bridegroom as best man, David Clayton of Stephens and Jim Smalling of El Dorado ushered, and Mr. Clayton also lighted the candles.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Frith wore a beige suit with matching accessories and had a corsage of red roses. Mrs. Stephens, mother of the groom, wore a winter white suit with blending accessories and her corsage was of yellow roses.

The wedding couple received their guests in the foyer of the church after the ceremony. There, Miss Janice Harper was in charge of the bride's book.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephens will make their home in Magnolia, where both are students at Southern State College.

YOUTH ASKED FOR IT!

This column is for young people their problems and pleasures, their troubles and fun. As with the rest of Helen Help US!, it welcomes laughs but won't dodge a serious question with a brush-off.

Send your teenage questions to Helen Help US!, this newspaper.

HOW STEADY IS STEADILY?

Dear Helen: I'm 18 and a freshman in college, away from home. I've been going steadily with this girl for over a year and am very serious about her. But every time I come home I hear reports that she has been seen walking and drinking sodas with other boys, one in particular.

Am I being over-jealous when I yell and threaten to clobber the kid? She tells me she loves me and just enjoys the company of other males, but she's very attractive and I don't want to lose her. On the other hand, she says she'll break up with me the minute I lay hands on any of the guys at home.

What should I do? — B. C. Dear B: Believe her! And cool it on a soda date — with another girl. — H.

Dear Helen: How can you get an 18-year-old fellow to stay in school? He has only a half-year more to go, but he skips to work at his part-time job in a garage. He'll be expelled if he misses much more.

All the family has begged him to stay in, but he won't listen. — LITTLE SISTER

Dear Sister: If you can't win, lose gracefully. He can finish that half-year of high school in the Army, where he'll no doubt be as soon as his Draft Board gets the message. — H.

Dear Helen: I like two girls equally as well. I went steady with Lou, and then we had a fight. Now I'm going steady with Jane, but I keep thinking of Lou. Lou is dating other boys, and this fries me. I want to see her the other night. You know what? I started right away thinking how nice Jane is.

How can I like two girls? — CONFUSED 17

Dear 17: . . . Uneasily: Unless you knock off the "steady" business and tell both you're not ready to settle for one. You won't lose either — I hope, but I won't bet on it. See below. — H.

Dear Helen: Last year I went out with this girl steadily. This year I decided we should start going with others. When I tried to explain, she wouldn't listen. I finally decided I would go with other girls, even without her consent because if I waited for her approval I'd never date another girl as long as I lived.

Going with someone else was harder than I bargained for. This girl is very popular and influential. She told all the girls I was still hers and hands off. Finally one girl broke the ban, and I'm sorry now I asked her. When my previous girlfriend found out, she made life so miserable for my new part-time girlfriend that she cried for a week. Everybody called her a traitor. I hear to ask anyone else for a date, as the same thing will happen.

I am only 16 and want to enjoy my teen years, but this dame makes me feel married already. Help! — TRAPPED

Dear Trapped: Everyone couldn't really like a girl this mean and grasping, so they've got to be afraid of her. Break her power by forming a group of your own whose battle cry is, "Down with one woman rule!" She's been the queen wasp long enough! — H.

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Writer NEW YORK (AP) — NBC Monday night joined the China watchers as that country of 700 million people is gripped in its political upheaval.

CBS, in a special program on China two weeks ago, chose to handle speculation on the subject by gathering three experts on China-watching and discussing the second-hand reports. NBC presented a series of short dissertations by its Far East correspondents and a State Department reporter, plus the most interesting man of all, Rabbi Abraham Feinberg, a Toronto clergyman, who recently spent four terrifying days inside China and described them vividly.

The rabbi said that upon arriving in one city, he was visited at once by authorities and ordered not to leave his room or take pictures during his stay.

"I could feel their hatred," he said. He told of seeing Red Guards — young people — in groups all over the roads and the cities. He spoke of demonstrations day and night — and of strange periods of silence.

"There were times," he said, "when we sensed a demonic, dynamic spirit abroad. The Red Guards are like a tiger let loose. Mao has him by the tail but you wonder what will happen if he has to let go."

It was, generally, a well-organized, economical summary of a thoroughly murky situation. Obviously neither CBS nor NBC has much new to offer since each has given only half-hour spots to the China specials.

"The Fugitive," ABC's long-running series about a man on the run, is likely to come to a halt this season, a victim of ratings and competition from NBC's movie reruns Tuesday nights. On Feb. 21, Dr. Kimble, who has been running from a murder rap for four years now, will catch up with the one-armed man he thinks killed his wife. The policeman who is chasing Kimble will also be part of the show.

While most canceled series quietly disappear, "The Fugitive," when it departs, will leave with style and class. When the series began, two episodes were written to wrap up the "hunted man" theme.

Lake Erie is the only one of the Great Lakes whose bottom does not extend below sea level, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

It is easy to dust around larger pieces of furniture. Try to fight this inclination. The dust that collects under these builds up and rolls out into the room. Jim Dolan Leads Bob Hope Classic

By BOB MYERS
Associated Press Sports Writer
PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Golfers who are widely unknown nationally have a way of leading in the early rounds of the $110,000 Bob Hope Desert Classic. The picture was familiar as the second round got under way today.

Jay Dolan III, from Leicester, Mass., shot a 66 Wednesday to lead his 135 rival pros — and their 408 amateur partners — into the second round with a two-stroke margin.

Jay Dolan III? He is 27. His father owns a golf course in Massachusetts. He has been a pro since 1961. And his best finish ever was a second place in the Doral Open last year.

Dolan knocked six strokes off par 72 at the Indian Wells Golf Club in the first round of the 90-hole marathon.

Two-time winner Arnold Palmer was seven shots back at 73, and Jack Nicklaus had a 75, while the remaining member of the current Big Three of pro golf, Billy Casper, might well be in the best position of all. He led off with a 69.

The defending champion, Doug Sanders, had a 70.

Two strokes back of Dolan at 68 were Jacky Cupit, Lionel Hebert, Dean Refram and Howie Johnson, while Casper was tied with Don Massengale, Jack McGowan, Jack Rule and Bob Lunn.

Sixty players made or broke par, with 39 in the latter category.

Wins First Race, Now a Contender

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Relected Glory won the first stakes race of his career in Hialeah's Bahamas Wednesday and moved into contention for Hialeah's longer, richer races for 3-year-olds coming up.

Relected Glory came from 15th after the first quarter mile and was fifth when he turned into the long stretch, but he colared the 8-5 favorite, Bold Hour, in the final jump to win by a neck and give Jorge Velasquez his third of four victories for the afternoon.

Relected Glory, owned by Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs and trained by her husband, Hirsch, earned $22,652 in giving Jacobs his second Bahamas Stakes. He won the inaugural 1933 with a colt named Character, with a purse of $2,500 in added money.

Relected Glory, a son of Jester out of Lysistrata by Palestinian, needed 1:23 to negotiate the seven furlongs. He whipped a classy field that included such promising Derby-age speedsters as Cool Reception, Native Gullie, Gentleman James, Reason to Hall, Ask The Fare, Fort Drum, Flying Tackle, Great White Way and others.

Hawks' Owner Decides Not to Sell Club

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — After nearly a month of uncertainty, the players and coach of the St. Louis Hawks of the National Basketball Association learned they could stop worrying about a move.

The owner of the Hawks, Ben Kerner, said Wednesday he was no longer interested in selling his team. He announced early in January that he was forced to sell because of an arthritic condition.

"I'm glad the club is staying in St. Louis," said player-coach Richie Guerin who was reached in New York where his team had tangled and lost to the New York Knicks Tuesday. The team didn't play Wednesday.

"Most of the players have just bought homes in the St. Louis area and they were pleased when I told them the news," Guerin added.

Soon after Kerner announced his team was for sale a New Orleans group reportedly offered $9.8 million. When one of the backers pulled out of the group the deal collapsed.

Millwood Hot Spot for Crappie

Millwood Lake, a new federal impoundment in SW corner of the state near Hope, Nashville, Ashdown, and Texarkana, is now filling. Over 25,000 acres have been flooded and crappie fishermen are already on the scene.

Minnows are proving to be the No. 1 bait, as crappie fishing has run from good to excellent recently. With a bit of warm weather, the lake holds great fishing promise this spring. Millwood also contains channel catfish, bass, bream, and some Northern Pike—all stocked by the Arkansas Game and Fish Commission's Fisheries Division.

Millwood, now completed, is on the Little River and floods part of Sevier, Howard, Hempstead, and Little River counties. The U. S. Corps of Engineers cleared 5,000 acres of the lake bed for open water-fishing, but most of the lake covers timbered areas. Fishing in the headwaters of the lake in Little River and the Cosatot River is expected to be good this spring.

Several access areas to the lake are scheduled for construction, with those at Saratoga and Beard's Bluff now completed. The lake was impounded on Sept. 1, 1966.

Continental Race Set at Daytona

By F. T. MACFEELY
DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Ferrari may have to look to Pedro Rodriguez, high speed Mexican driver, for an assist in its effort to beat Ford in the Daytona Continental this weekend, especially if one of its two new factory specials is seriously damaged from a practice crash.

Like race horses, these 200-mile-an-hour low slung race cars can be thrown out of kilter easily. Thus, even the apparently minor blow when Ludovico Scarfiotti spun the red No. 24 coupe into a guard rail Wednesday night at Daytona International Speedway is a potential source of trouble.

The veteran Italian driver said a smaller car unexpectedly moved from side to side in front of him and he had to take to the infield grass to avoid a collision during after-dark practice for the 24-hour race starting at 3 p.m. Saturday.

"It's not critical," declared Mauro Forghieri, designer and chief engineer of the new Ferrari, after a visual inspection. But the car went to the garage and didn't return before practice ended. At best, it will take a good bit of body work and new red paint.

Ford, winner of this race the past two years, has six Mark II models in competition, and all of them came through intact so far.

Ferrari, shut out both here and at Sebring since 1964, came up with a major effort in its two new 12-cylinder P4 models, carefully groomed by factory mechanics.

Rodriguez, winner of the Continental at shorter distances in 1964 and 1963, has a Ferrari entered by the North American racing team. It is listed as a P4, but a man in a position to know lacks some refinements of the factory pair.

with his runs batted in production — 27 in 100 games. They traded him to the Mets Nov. 29 along with infielder Derrell Griffith for second baseman Ron Hunt and outfielder Jim Hickman.

The Mets signed two other players Wednesday — catcher John Sullivan and first baseman Terry Christman.

Other players signing included shortstop Gene Alley and pitcher Larry Killingsworth of Pittsburgh, third baseman Pete Ward of the Chicago White Sox, pitchers Wes Stock and Paul Lindblad of Kansas City and outfielders Lee Maye, Willie Smith and Jose Vidal of the Cleveland Indians.

Tommy Davis Signs for $47,000

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer
Tommy Davis lost a $5 bet but won a $50,000 contract.

Davis, a two-time National League batting champion, signed his 1967 contract Wednesday, his first after being traded from the Los Angeles Dodgers to the New York Mets.

Although no terms were disclosed, it was believed the 27-year-old outfielder received $47,000, the most money he's ever earned for one season's play.

Asked how much higher this year's pay is over his top salary with the Dodgers, Davis chuckled and replied, "About 98 cents. . . No, I got a slight raise, very satisfactory."

But Bing Devine, Mets' president, broke in and asked Davis, "Do I have to remind you that you have already blown your raise?"

Devine then explained that he won a $5 bet from Davis on the Super Bowl.

Davis was super himself in 1962 and 1963 when he hit .346 and .326 and won two consecutive batting titles. He dropped to .275 in 1964, then broke his right ankle early in 1965.

He came back with a .313 season last year, but the Dodgers apparently weren't satisfied far.

That Thud You Hear Is T. Western

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer
That thud down El Paso way was the Texas Western Miners, national collegiate basketball champions, falling flatter than the bottom of a pancake.

That is a pet phrase of Eddie Mullens, director of sports information at Texas Western. He uses it usually in referring to the Miners' opponents.

It was New Mexico State, beaten in 22 games last season and seven-time loser this year, which flattened the nationally fourth-ranked Miners 68-55 Wednesday night.

In snapping the Miners' seven-game winning streak, the Aggies handed the national champs their third defeat against 14 victories.

All three of the Miners' defeats, by New Mexico, Southern Illinois and now New Mexico State, have been suffered at home. Apparently the crowd of 5,100 at the Miners' Memorial Gym didn't like it Wednesday.

They threw debris on the floor during the last five minutes of play and the court had to be cleaned several times.

John Gambill's 24 points led the Aggies to their 11th victory in 18 stars. David Lattin and Willie Cager each got 17 for the Miners.

Louisville, third-ranked in The Associated Press poll and the only other Top Ten team to see action, drubbed St. Louis on the road 82-62 behind Butch Beard's 25 points.

The Toledo Rockets walloped Kent State at home 78-62 for their 14th straight victory and, along with top-ranked UCLA, remained one of the two major unbeaten teams.

Marquette handed St. John's of New York a 71-54 walloping and St. Bonaventure poured it on against Canisius 97-58. In other games, Connecticut trimmed Massachusetts 66-59, Cincinnati edged Bradley 69-68, Michigan State downed Notre Dame in overtime 85-80, West Virginia squeaked by Davidson 86-83, Duke trampled Virginia 100-77 and Mississippi nipped Mississippi State 71-70.

Syracuse ended Penn State's home winning streak at 31 by defeating the Nittany Lions 90-73 behind George Hicker's 28 points. Jamie Thompson's 26 points led Wichita over Drake 71-60 at Des Moines.

Humble Marshall got 24 points to pace LaSalle over Creighton 88-83 in overtime in the second game of a doubleheader at Philadelphia. Villanova whipped Detroit 75-56 in the opener.

In other games, all home court triumphs, Tennessee beat Georgia Tech 59-48, Cornell swamped Pitt 110-72, Holy Cross humbled Boston Univ. 115-60 and Ohio Univ. downed Western Michigan 69-65.

On the road, St. Joseph's of Philadelphia defeated Xavier of Ohio 87-80, Seattle took Montana State 69-61, Santa Clara beat San Jose 91-75, Auburn overcame Georgia 62-49 and Navy whipped George Washington 85-79.

Players Are Unhappy With Giants Offers

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—It's got to the point where those San Francisco Giants who have yet to come to terms for the 1967 National League baseball season appear more newsworthy than those who have.

With spring training scheduled to start just a little more than a month from now, star pitchers Juan Marichal and Lindy McDaniel are understood to be unhappy over proposed salary offers by the Giants.

Also expected to cause varying degrees of difficulty are shortstop Tito Fuentes, pinch-hitter Norm Stebner and outfielder Ken Henderson.

With the signing Tuesday of pitchers Ray Sadecki and Ron Herbel, the Giants have 24 of 41 in the field.

Marichal reportedly wants at least $100,000 for his 25-6 performance of last year.

The remaining 12 players are mainly youngsters and rookies who were not expected to cause any trouble.

Despite the missing contracts, the Giants still have signatures of many of the stars who took them to a second-place finish in 1966. They include slugger, Willie Mays, Willie McCovey, Jim Hart and Tom Haller, 21-game winner Gaylord Perry and reliever Frank Linzy.

2 Dams Near Grand Canyon Abandoned

By HARRISON HUMPHRIES WASHINGTON (AP) — The controversy over the Colorado River rippled on today despite a Johnson administration proposal to drop consideration of two dams near the Grand Canyon.

Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall announced Wednesday the administration decision to support a $719 million central Arizona project draw water from the Colorado River without any revenue-producing hydroelectric dams or study of importing additional water into the Colorado.

Chairman Wayne M. Aspinall, D-Colo., of the House Interior Committee predicts the administration proposal "will not pass" in Congress.

Aspinall's committee last year approved a bill, representing months of negotiations among the seven states of the Colorado River basin, calling for a $1.7-billion development package including the central Arizona project and five upstream projects in Colorado and New Mexico.

Last year's bill called for construction of Hualapai — formerly Bridge Canyon — and Marble Canyon dams in the Grand Canyon region of the Colorado. These were to guarantee that Arizona's new use of Colorado River water would not reduce California's share below 4.4 million acre feet a year. The bill also provided for preliminary studies of works to divert surplus water from other basins into the Colorado River.

With intense opposition from the Pacific Northwest — a potential source of supplemental water for the Colorado — and from conservation organizations battling dam construction affecting the Grand Canyon, the bill never reached a vote in the House or Senate.

Udall told a news conference Wednesday that two basic considerations prompted solid administration support for the new plan — elimination of controversy among the states and lower cost.

Chairman Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., of the Senate Interior Committee greeted the administration proposal with cheers. Without referring specifically either to the elimination of the dams or the proposed importation of water to the Colorado, Jackson said the new plan "is a sound basis for agreement in Congress on a program which can go forward without the disputes between states and regions which have plagued previous proposals."

But the new proposal opened old wounds from previous interstate battles over the Colorado River — the last major water source in the nation's fastest growing and most arid region.

Even though the Supreme Court decreed in 1964 that Arizona is entitled to enough water in the planned project to supply Phoenix, Tucson and adjacent rural areas, Californians indicated they could not go along without a guarantee that in years of low flow in the Colorado River the new Arizona project would not cut California back to less than 4.4 million acre feet.

throp Rockefeller has said he probably will veto the bill if it gets through the House. The Senate approved the measure 31-4.

During the debate on Cathright's bill, more than a dozen well-dressed, middle-aged women waited patiently in the Senate galleries for the next issue on the agenda — abolition of trading stamps.

When Sen. Richard Earl Griffin of Crossett rose to speak for his bill, they hoisted hand-painted signs announcing their support for him.

It didn't help much. The bill, which would have prohibited the distribution of stamps 30 days after it went into effect and their redemption five months later, went down to a crushing 26-9 defeat.

The House spent Wednesday clearing away non-controversial legislation and adjourned until 11 a.m. today, when it met in a joint session with the Senate to hear representatives of the state Soil and Water Conservation Commission speak on air and water pollution control.

During its brief session, it approved bills to change the make-up of the Legislative Council and permit funds of all state retirement systems to be invested in capital notes and certificates of deposit in Arkansas banks.

The House also passed a bill to set 30 cents a week as the minimum to be taken out of an employee's pay check under the state income tax withholding system and permit employers with no more than five employees to forego it altogether.

In other action Wednesday, the Senate:

—Approved 32-0 a bill that would require requests for insurance rate increases to be open for public inspection from the date of filing.

—Approved 32-0 a bill that would remove the penalties set for members of the Legislative Joint Budget Committee for failing to introduce all appropriation bills by the 30th day of the General Assembly.

—Amend to include public school principals a bill that would permit school districts to employ superintendents and deputy superintendents for three years, instead of two years.

—Approved 33-0 a bill that would increase from $75 to $125 the monthly benefits paid widows of policemen killed in the line of duty and from $20 to $25 the benefits for their children.

—Approved 32-0 a bill that would authorize the state Publicity and Parks Commission to prepare a comprehensive development plan for the Village Creek area of Willow Creek in Cross and St. Francis counties.

—Approved 32-0 a bill that would authorize a supplemental appropriation of $130,000 for operation and maintenance of the state penitentiary during the remainder of the fiscal year.

In other action the House approved bills:

—Exempting diamonds, mussel shells, ocher and pearls from the five per cent severance tax.

—Raising the cost limitations on improvement districts from 60 to 80 per cent.

—Authorizing the state bank commissioner to issue cease and desist orders to banks found guilty of violations.

—Raising the amount of capital stock required of casualty insurance companies from $200,000 to $500,000.

—Raising the salaries of chancery and circuit judges from $15,000 to $18,000.

—Prohibiting a person released conditionally from the State Hospital from voting unless he has been certified as being free of chosis.

—Making the left lane the passing lane of any highway with two or more lanes running in the same direction.

—Permitting destruction of bank records after six years.

—Waiving payment of interest on student loans while the student is in the armed forces, pointed out, and this would give them job security during a change of administration.

Newest U. S. Department Called DOT

By JAMES MARLOW

Associated Press News Analyst WASHINGTON (AP) — About 50 people in a few offices at one end of the 8th floor of a Washington office building are busy pulling together the pieces of the 12th and newest government department, called DOT for short.

Although Congress created the Department of Transportation last October, it isn't now scheduled to be in business before March 1. When it is, it will have 31 government agencies and bureaus under its wing, and 90,000 employees.

This makes it a very big department but, because of the way Congress set it up, it will be a long way from being one of the strongest arms of the government.

DOT will be mainly a moral force, a persuader, and a coordinator in the scrambled and tangled fields of air, rail and road transportation.

The various agencies and bureaus making up DOT will be ones dealing with railroads, airlines, buses, and all types of transportation except some on water because Congress did not include the Maritime Administration.

Among the agencies that are included are the Bureau of Public Roads, the Coast Guard and the Federal Aviation Agency.

But Congress didn't turn over to DOT the rate-making and regulatory powers that belong to the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Civil Aeronautics Board, the Federal Power Commission or the Maritime Administration.

This may make DOT look like a weakling among the government department giants.

But it can make recommendations to the President on what is needed in transportation. Then, when he accepts recommendations and offers them to Congress as his policies and programs, they should have tremendous weight.

All this means is that DOT has the job of planning for the present and the future in American transportation, which gets more mixed up by the day and is expected to double in 20 years.

DOT's new secretary, Alan S. Boyd, a 44-year-old Florida lawyer made head of DOT by President Johnson last month, was the Commerce Department's undersecretary for transportation.

In that job he was Johnson's chief adviser on transportation problems but, compared with what he has now, had practically no staff. Now when he gives advice it will be with the resources of government behind him.

A good deal of DOT's work will be research. For instance, take traveling in the crowded Northeast corner of the United States, say from Boston to New York.

Would it be cheaper to develop trains that go faster — at a cost of perhaps $700 million — or would it be more economical to work out some arrangement in which helicopters could be used?

Boyd said last month the nation is approaching the "crisis stage" in the problem of air travel congestion and the Johnson administration has under way a study of major programs to deal with it, a study which may be finished this year.

The continuing, pressing problem is the general demand for transportation which runs parallel to the country's economic growth. In this century four new systems of transportation were developed: autos, trucks, airplanes and pipelines.

Since few new systems are being imagined for the 33 years left before the end of this century, one of DOT's main tasks will be to figure out how the country can do better with what it has.

that they are going to be fired. If this bill protects them, then I'm for it."

Each of the state's constitutional officers would appoint one member of the Civil Service Commission that would oversee the operation of the merit system.

The Senate yielded to the persuasions of Sen. Morrell Cathright of Pine Bluff and approved a measure that no one had thought would pass—a bill to increase state turnback to cities from its present $3.7 million a year to $8.7 million in 1967-68 and $13.7 million in 1968-69.

All his bill does, he said, is make the appropriation in case some extra money comes in. The actual allocation would be determined by the state's Revenue Stabilization Act.

With that in mind, along with the knowledge that Gov. Win-shifts would be 211 liberals and 222 conservatives if everybody voted, which would be unusual. However, the conservatives have a better attendance record.

The conservative Democrats have no formal organization or formal leadership. In the past they followed the lead of Howard W. Smith of Virginia, defeated for renomination last year.

"There is no formal coalition," a Republican leader said. "There is no coalition leadership this year. Let's say we are developing lines of communication to keep conservatives of both parties in touch with each other. We are in a majority if we stick together."

A leading liberal Democrat agreed. "We probably couldn't have got any votes from the Southerners anyway," he commented. "But we are getting across the message that party loyalty, rather than seniority, must be the basis for advancement."

Chicago Is Reeling With a New Storm

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Snow-stricken Chicago reeled under the onslaught of a second major storm today and buyers picked market shelves clean of dwindling supplies of meat and milk.

The new four-inch coating of white in the Chicago area on this Groundhog Day brought the total accumulation on the ground to 30 inches.

The new snow, expected to run its course today, was accompanied by freezing rain and high winds which caused drifts in some areas. But the bad weather failed to halt the mad-dash of shoppers who scrambled to lay in supplies because of the new storm.

"It's panic, that's what it is," said an executive of one downtown grocery store. The executive had been pressed into service to push carts.

All around him shoppers battled to get to diminishing supplies of milk and meat. The bread long had been gone. As the snow fell outside, reminding many of last weekend's paralyzing blizzard, shoppers shoved, ran, grabbed, cursed, pushed and knocked others out of the way to get to food supplies.

Hazardous driving conditions prevailed throughout the Chicago area and officials pleaded with residents to leave their automobiles home unless it was absolutely necessary to drive.

Pakistan in Squabble Over Moon

By JOE MCGOWAN JR.

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP)—A seemingly insignificant controversy over what might be the new moon put in its appearance over Pakistan at the end of the Moslem fasting month Ramadan carried tones of dissatisfaction with President Ayub Khan's government.

A moon-sighting committee appointed by the government reported that it was sighted Wednesday night, Jan. 11, so Moslems could break their day-long fasts and embark on their annual festival of prayers, banquets, gift-giving and merriment.

But a large number of mosques were padlocked the following day. Many ulemas—Moslem priests—then reported sighting the Eid moon Thursday night and announced the fast maintained near normal operations and Midway Airport was closed for a short time.

City and Chicago Transit Authority crews continued to plow as the storm grew in intensity. Downtown motels and hotels were jammed to capacity by the end of Wednesday afternoon by commuters who wished to avoid a repetition of last week's events when they either were stalled in their automobiles or spent the night in whatever accommodations they could find.

The Weather Bureau today offered this advice to any groundhog hoping to see his shadow on Groundhog Day: "Forget it. Your hole will be piled over with snow."

Many suburban schools remained closed today, but most city elementary and parochial schools were open with classes starting at 10 a.m. Overcrowding slowed some transit authority elevated trains, and commuter trains were operating on slowed-down schedules.

The Chicago Park District picked Wednesday — of all days — to announce plans for its 33rd season of open-air summer concerts in Grant Park on the Lake Michigan front.

Chicago area hospitals urged friends and relatives of patients not to visit them during the new storm.

could be broken Friday, the 13th.

Political observers saw significance behind the controversy. They said the government wanted to make sure the moon was sighted Wednesday but the opposition made sure the sighting was a day later since celebration of Eid on a Friday is inauspicious and bears bad omen for rulers.

The government arrested five of West Pakistan's top religious leaders last Sunday under defense of Pakistan rules.

Those arrested were said to have made speeches in mosques "inciting the people against the government" over the Eid moon dispute. The five were among those who disputed the government's sighting of the moon.

The defense of Pakistan rules, which permit indefinite detention without hearing or trial, give Ayub a strong hand in dealing with his opposition. Just how serious the opposition is remains to be seen. Ayub's political opposition is disorganized, some of it just getting going after several years in prison.

Ayub is still firmly in command but there appears to be substantial discontent at the grass roots level.

Some of this is fundamental—people are unhappy when their stomachs are empty and Pakistan's food shortages are mounting. Wheat is selling for a record high price in West Pakistan. Similar problems are reported in East Pakistan, where the people are mostly rice eaters.

The United States has been helping out with about 1.5 million tons of wheat per year, and at the same time has been backing a massive program aimed at food self-sufficiency.

Drought has increased the deficit to nearly 2.5 million tons. American reserves are dropping and there is some question whether Ayub will be able to meet the needs.

Nevertheless, Ayub's economy, somewhat more regimented than India's, has shown encouraging gains.

Export earnings last year jumped 12 per cent and in the first five months of the present fiscal year are up 14 per cent.

The foreign exchange position is expected to improve slightly now that the jute crop, Pakistan's big foreign exchange

No Dividend by AMC for Sixth Year

DETROIT (AP) — For a sixth straight quarter, American Motors Corp. stockholders will get no dividend, but they have some more information about their firm's latest project — the minicar.

There was no spontaneous reaction to either of these developments among the 310 stockholders at AMC's annual meeting Wednesday.

Board Chairman Roy D. Chapin Jr. and President William V. Luneburg, named to their posts less than a month ago, said a 1966 first-quarter profit of $4 million had slipped to a net loss of $8 million in the period ended last Dec. 31.

AMC sold 99,566 cars in the first quarter of this fiscal year, down from the 123,064 sold in the first quarter a year ago, they reported.

At the same time, Luneburg announced a new shutdown of AMC car-building facilities for 10 working days starting Feb. 13 to bring production to the level of sales.

AMC resumed production Monday after a two-week shutdown of its auto plants in Wisconsin.

At this point, Luneburg said, no further plant closures or cuts in the work force are planned for the rest of the 1967 model run.

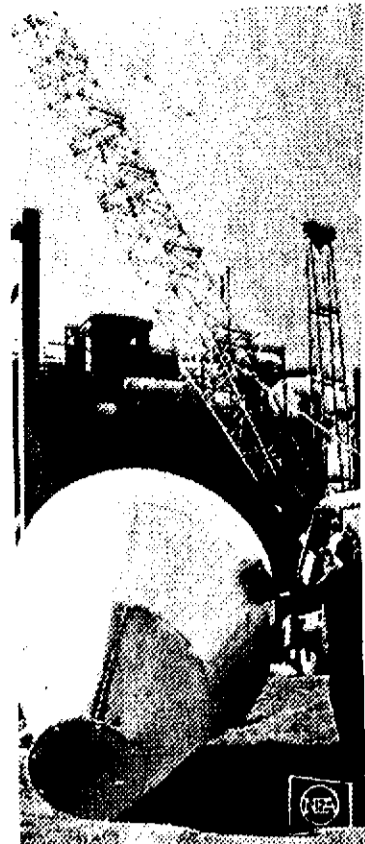

Chapin became board chairman of AMC Jan. 9 and mentioned then the possibility of a new small car. He enlarged on the disclosure Wednesday for AMC stockholders.

The car, a minicar, will fit in between the smallest U. S. built car and the smaller imports, he said.

The Rambler American now is the lowest priced U. S. car and Chapin indicated the minicar would be smaller than the American, probably in both size and price.

earner, is moving to market.

Pakistan's gross national product increased 4.8 per cent last year. This was lower than the planned 6.5 per cent, but a noteworthy gain. Western observers say the fiscal gains would have been met but for the drought.

SPACE CAPSULES end up in the darndest places, so it seems. Actually, this is a look-alike serving a down-to-earth purpose—a hopper for dumping coal into coke plant ovens at the CF&I Steel Corp. in Pueblo, Colo.

Man Named to Racing Commission

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Dr. M. R. Springer of Hot Springs and Ralph Myers Jr. of McCrory have been appointed to the Arkansas Racing Commission.

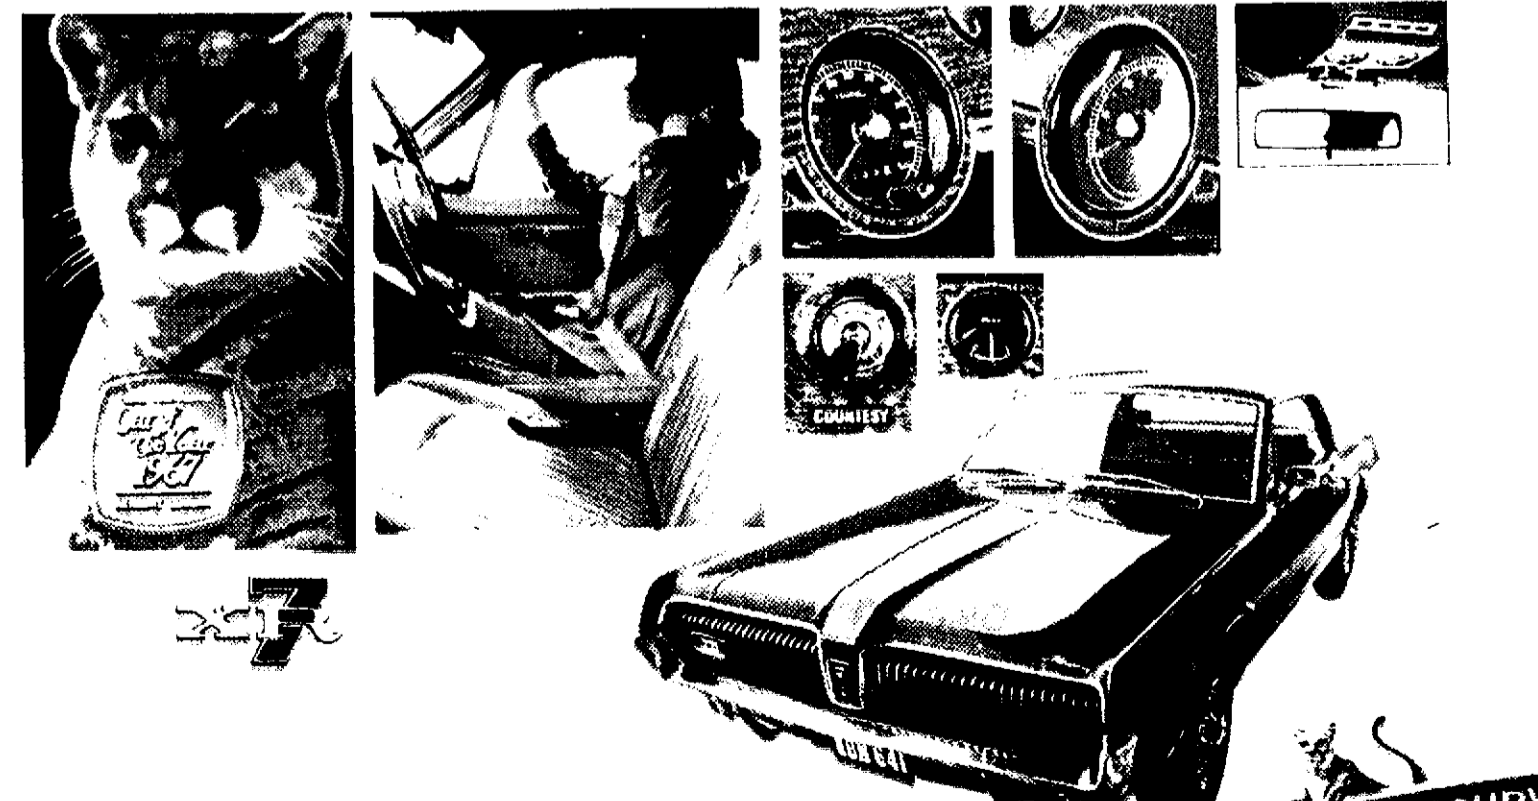

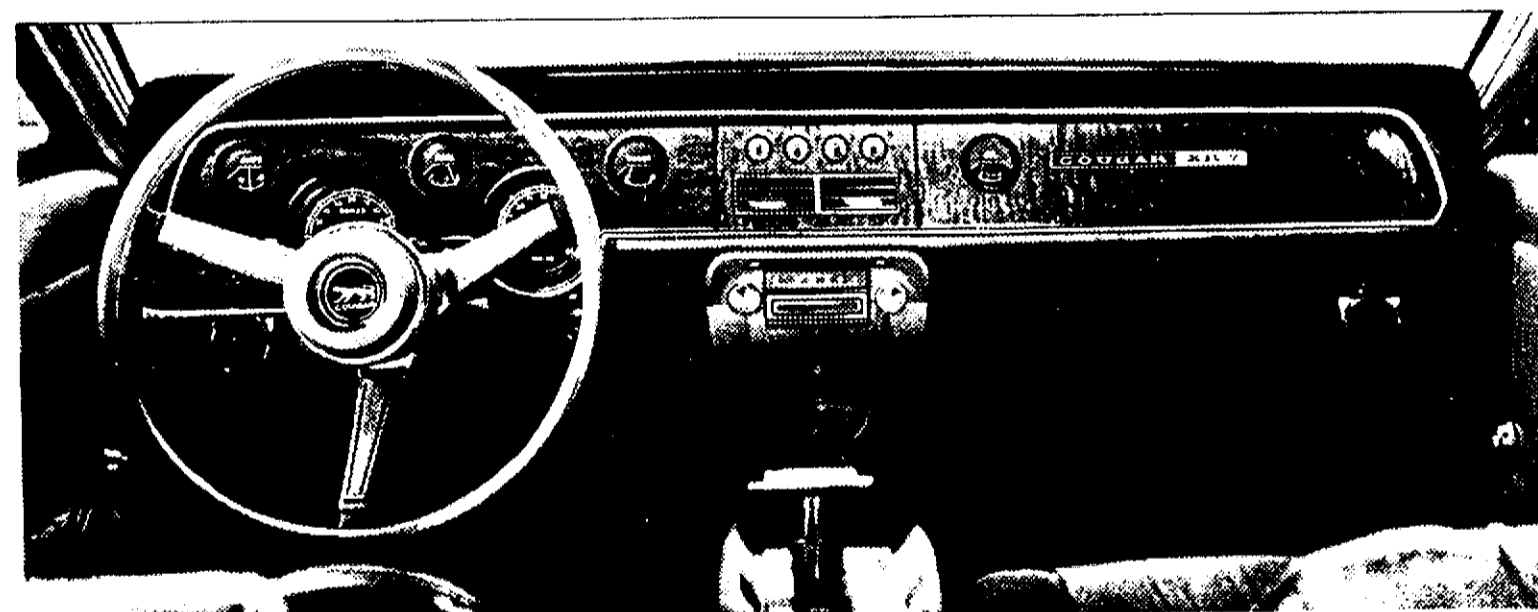

Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller announced the appointments Wednesday—Springer to a five-year term and Myers to a two-year term. Both are Republicans.

Springer, 35, who was named man of the year in Hot Springs in 1965, is the chief of staff at Ouachita Memorial Hospital. He also is vice chairman of the 3rd District Arkansas Young Republican State Committee.

Myers, 37, chairman of the Woodruff County GOP Committee, is a rice and soybean farmer.

CARRY HAT PIN, WHISTLE NORTH CHICAGO, Ill. (AP) - Police Chief John S. Matijevich suggests women arm themselves with whistles and pins to ward off attackers.

"I would say that carrying a shrill whistle, an ordinary hat or stick pin and judicious use of teeth, fingernails, feet and voice in fighting off the assailant would be invaluable, both in staying off the man and in later identification," he said. But the first precaution would be for a woman not to place herself in a situation where a potential attacker would see his way clear for an assault. "Don't walk down dimly lit side-streets. Watch out for suspicious looking characters and never walk near cars parked in alleys or in unlighted areas," he said.

THE DOCTOR'S MAILBAG

Varying Means for Wart Removal Are Available

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—Is there any cure for plantar warts? Is surgery necessary?

A—Although plantar warts may occur at any age they are seen most often in adolescents. They are caused by a virus. The warts are flush with the surface of the skin and pressure on them, as in walking, may be very painful. Many types of treatment have been used with varying success. A few disappear spontaneously, especially if the area can be kept dry, but most plantar warts are persistent and may recur after they have been removed.

One treatment that has been effective, especially in children, is to soak the area in 5 per cent formalin for 15 minutes every night for several weeks until the warts drop out. This course of treatment is shortened if your doctor freezes the wart with carbon dioxide snow before the foot soaks are started.

Another treatment that has worked well with some victims is the application of an ointment containing linseed oil to soften the wart and podophyllin to kill it. Warts that have failed to respond to other measures have been removed successfully with a series of treatments with ultrasound. Most doctors avoid surgical removal.

Q—Would a tipped uterus affect the bowel? Would it interfere with conception?

A—A uterus that is acutely tipped backward may cause pressure on the rectum and a feeling of fullness or distress in that region. It may also make it difficult to conceive. The degree of tipping varies widely. If there are no symptoms, no treatment is required. For some of the milder forms, assuming the knee-chest posture (knees and chest resting on the bed with the hip elevated) for 20 minutes twice a day is helpful. For the more severe degrees your doctor can replace the uterus in its normal position, then prevent its tipping by inserting a pessary designed for this purpose.

Operations to fix the uterus in place are not recommended for women of child-bearing age because following childbirth the uterus is very likely to return to its tipped position.

Q—What are the symptoms of a fallen or prolapsed uterus? What causes it and what can be done to help the victim?

A—Prolapse of the uterus occurs following childbirth in women with a weak pelvic floor. It may cause a feeling of heaviness in the pelvis and difficulty controlling the urine. In some women a carefully fitted pessary may be all that is needed to correct this condition. In others a pelvic repair operation is required.

NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

RACY AUTO is the new Lola Type 70 MK-111, unveiled at the racing car show in London recently. The 200-m.p.h. car is the brainchild of Eric Broadley, whose firm at Slough, England, built the Lola-Ford Graham Hill drove to victory in last year's Indianapolis 500. The Lola's engine is fully enclosed and a rear window gives full vision at the back of the sunken center to comply with new regulations.

Russians Gain Moon Race

By RAY CROMLEY
Washington Staff
Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — The tragic Apollo accident in which astronauts Virgil Grissom, Edward White and Roger Chaffee lost their lives could mean the Russians will put men on the moon before the United States.

The U.S. space program has been set back about six months.

There will be delay to replace equipment.

There will be a slowdown while space scientists thoroughly check through safety provisions and the methods used to make certain rockets and spacecraft have "zero defects."

A further slowdown is certain as the space agency and the companies which supply the hardware prepare for these new safety and zero defect procedures.

As the program continues, it is almost certain there will be more accidents. Although there are safety and escape systems worked out to help astronauts in trouble no one is certain these will work when an accident occurs.

The result might be an accident which this time would leave several astronauts circling in space, unable to get down. Or they might attempt a return which would burn them to death.

There was an escape system set up for astronauts on the pad, but it didn't save Grissom, White and Chaffee from the type of accident which occurred.

The technical difficulties of circling the moon, landing men on the moon, taking them off again to come home to earth are 10 times greater than the operations conducted to date. The chances for failure are thus multiplied.

Some capable scientists believe the technical difficulties of landing and returning a man from the moon are too great to be overcome in our time.

The Russians have had space failures in which men are believed to have been lost. There are reports that six—including a Red army general—were killed in one launch failure.

Knowledgeable U. S. scientists also believe there are dead Russian cosmonauts circling in space. One U. S. Air Force general officer made this statement after conferences with European scientists a year or so back. He was quickly silenced by the Air Force but his statements have not been directly denied.

Last October the Soviet Union launched a large space vehicle which came apart in space. Some U. S. space experts believe from the characteristics of the spacecraft that cosmonauts were aboard. The Russians have never acknowledged the satellite as theirs.

One great mistake of the U.S. program has been that the National Aeronautics and Space Administration has consistently underplayed the dangers involved in the program and the risks taken by the astronauts.

NASA has overplayed the safety procedures and underplayed the possibilities of an accident.

Actually, it is only through great luck that there have not been more deaths. Several "near misses" have been averted only by the great skill and presence of mind of the astronauts involved.

The space program involves so many things that are new to man and about which he knows so little that something is bound to go wrong time and time again. Says one space scientist:

"We never know when we press that button whether the astronauts will come back."

Are U.S. Cities Worth Saving?

THE HISTORICAL LANDMARKS sign in this southern California community virtually is lost in a jungle of commercial advertising. It prompts the question: Must the nation's heritage play second fiddle to liquor, beer, payroll cashing, television, etc., in the name of "free enterprise"? NEW YORK — (NEA) — Is the American city worth saving?

Some people don't think so. They believe it is too late to save it and that it is not worth saving. They point out that downtown is dead and that the "highwaymen" are carving up the carcass with "stillways" and "grooveways."

Their solution is to abandon the decaying city core for suburbia. For them, the battle is over.

How are they doing in the suburbs?

Sprawl City lies like a ragged carpet over the Atlantic seaboard from Boston to Washington. Across the continent, it is creeping north to San Francisco and south to San Diego, through all the valleys and over the bulldozed mountains of the Pacific coast. In between, every major city is exploding into the countryside, unplanned, un-zoned, unchecked.

Endless suburbia reduces sense of place and personal involvement in the community. Administrative, commercial and cultural centers are scattered, often miles from the communities they are supposed to serve. These centers inevitably play second fiddle to television, radio and other canned substitutes for the realities of direct personal contact, thought and action for community betterment.

Suburbia sprawls across city, county and state lines. Within these invisible and generally meaningless boundaries, political bodies are usually deadlocked and helpless to provide the citizens with the common services they need on a unified, economic basis.

Citizens who live in Sprawl City send their children to schools in one political municipality, go to work in a second, shop in a third, and travel regularly across a fourth. They are obliged to do this in pursuit of a decent life.

Our government has interpreted the suburbanite's interest in mobility as a love affair with the automobile. The damage done to historic buildings, natural scenery and community togetherness by single-minded, politically abetted, highway planners is not unlike what foreign towns and cities have suffered at the hands of invading armies.

Our tax laws are equally absurd. At every level of government they reward the man who lets his property run down and penalize the man who tries to make it a community asset.

Citizens bent on escaping the cities will find that blight is a common phenomenon in the suburbs. So, too, are all the other major social problems of our day. Indeed, the fate of suburbia is inextricably wound up with the fate of the city.

Suburbanites tend to forget that when the city core is rotten, there can be no health in the outer skin.

What kind of people are we? Do we really intend to let America be beautiful, in all its glory and technical excellence, go down the drain?

Solutions to the problem of urban disorder and ugliness are not easy to come by, but they do exist. I submit it will take four forces to get the job done:

- An enlightened and vigorous government
- The talents and dedication of the design professionals
- The demonstrated ability of business leadership to get things done in the community
- The expressed will of a public that demands a better urban life and realizes it can have it.

There is no substitute for the real city. It sets the quality of life for every American. The time has come for all of us to save it from destruction.

have it.

'Let's Get Out of Here!'

By TOM TIEDE

PHUONG THAN, Vietnam — (NEA)—It all began innocently enough. Pfc. Paul Leaird wanted to do something nice. "For some of the helpless Vietnamese," he put it.

So he wrote home: "Please send toys and clothing."

And home wrote back: "Son, they're on their way." After a bit, five boxes arrived at the base camp of the First Air Cavalry Division near here. Leaird's parents had enlisted the aid of the Colgate, Okla., American Legion. Hundreds of items were collected, and all of them packaged for the villagers of Phuong Than.

There were shirts, socks, old trousers, stuffed animals, wind-up toys, plastic sundries—perhaps $100 worth of merchandise.

Leaird was elated. And so were his superiors. Every little bit helps and the whole theory of this war is to win the friendship of the helpless millions in the boondocks.

Thus, 19-year-old Paul Leaird received permission to distribute his gifts. He got a truck, a driver and a bodyguard. And off they went.

The road to Phuong Than was wet and mud oozed three and four inches thick in places. But as the truck slipped its way into town, dozens of village youths slopped through the mire as greeting.

"Hi you! Hi you!"
"O.K., me, too."
"Hallo, hallo."
Cute little helpless bumpkins.

The jeep stopped near the village square and within moments scores of friendly villagers gathered around. Leaird tried to make his presentation formally to the village chief, but in vain.

Nobody wanted speeches. Just gifts.

Immediately, some of the overanxious climbed into the truck. The bodyguard pushed them back as best he could. And the village chief did his best also. He stood up and shouted:

"Di, di, di, di!"
Get back, get back!
But nobody did. If the chief expected parents to control their rambunctious youngsters, he got just the opposite. It was, in fact, the parents who needed controlling. Children who tried to get to the toys were whopped by mother's backhand.

Everybody was grabbing. Arguments started. Pushing and shoving. Survival of the fittest. A couple of boxes were dragged away.

Two old men in their late 70s engaged in a frantic feud over possession of a stuffed rabbit. One had one ear and the other the other. There was screaming and moaning and the tearing of fabric.

A lady swatted a neighbor to get first crack at a clock. Grabbing it, she looked immensely satisfied. She wound it up and it said: "Hickory, dickory, dock." She was bruised but happy.

As the items disappeared, one of the GIs noticed his poncho was missing. Also his rifle. He retrieved them from an old gal who, instantly, waded back into the melee for something else.

Finally, even the village chief gave up. But not before first grabbing a toy for himself. It was a beetle family—daddy, mommy, and two young bugs. The chief spent the remainder of the afternoon playing with the mechanical roaches on the hood of a nearby vehicle.

Leaird, meanwhile, had grown frantic.

"Hey, hey, hold it!"

But it was no use.

At length the young soldier stopped yelling. His eyes grew wide. He reached firmly out for the remainder of the gifts, picked them all up and threw them as high as he could.

"Let's get out of here."

On the road, the driver licked his wounds. The bodyguard made a personal inventory. They were red-faced and flustered.

And Leaird? He sat perfectly still. From time to time he shook his head solemnly and mumbled:

"It's the damndest thing I ever saw."

Check List

By JAMES M. MURPHEY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

"Fifty per cent of the young men who begin their careers this fall will leave their first job within three to five years," says career counselor Joseph Venaglia, president of the College Marketing Institute.

"They are largely the college graduates who never got through to their interviewers. Why? Because the usual student applicant is completely unprepared to take charge of the interview situation," he adds.

Do your plans include three to five years of postgraduate searching for a suitable job? Of course not. What you need is a system, a way of taking the initiative in a job-hunting situation. Venaglia has just the one.

The system begins with understanding what the recruiter is really looking for. Remember that when he sends a man up to his boss he has to be reasonably sure the boss will approve.

The question the recruiter asks himself is, "Will this recruit be able to protect my image?" He will feel comfortable only if you reduce his uncertainty. The only way for you to do that is to provide him with the greatest amount of relevant information in the least amount of time. Simple? Yes, but bringing it off requires systematic thinking.

Your general approach is to put yourself in charge of the situation. Become a salesman selling yourself so that the recruiter can comfortably assume the position of buyer.

In most recruiting situations the recruiter is forced to be both buyer and seller, because the student being interviewed doesn't know anything about the company. When that happens, the student applicant has much less opportunity to sell himself. So, you have to know the interviewer's company.

Once you show the recruiter that you know his company, he is ready to pay attention to you. Here is where you must know yourself—and show it.

Only one out of a hundred applicants walks into an interview situation with a clear idea of who he is and what he wants. The man is such a rarity that the recruiter is usually amazed. The result is that the recruiter can't afford to let this one-in-a-hundred get away.

His thinking goes like this:

"If this man is capable of doing this kind of analysis on himself, then he's obviously prepared to exhibit the same decision-making qualities within our company."

Now, how to do it. Knowing yourself takes systematic thought. A way to go about it is:

• List all the things that you have ever enjoyed doing. List one or a hundred; but don't consider those things you might enjoy.

• Make a tentative choice of the three you most enjoy doing. You are entitled to change your mind.

• Ask yourself why you enjoy doing these three things. List at least 10 reasons for each. Push yourself until you can't think of any more reasons. If you can't list at least five "good" reasons, you may have made a bad choice.

• Talk with people actively engaged with each of your major interests to find out more about them.

• Find the products and services associated with your three interests. List them.

• Analyze what type of involvement you would prefer to have with the products or services listed. Would you want to manufacture them? Advertise them? Finance them? List three activities for each product or service.

• Name 10 reasons for the choice you made of specific occupations related to major interests. Sources of information are easy to find (professional organizations, professors). Also, contact key men in companies. Although these executives are busy, nine out of 10 will see you if you use this method:

Contact the man's secretary and ask if you, as a student, could have 10 minutes of the man's time to ask three questions pertinent to your career choice. Then be sure to have three well-thought-out specific questions for him. (If you're impressive, you may end up spending the afternoon with the man. And may even land a job offer later—but don't angle for it.)

• Decide where you want to work. East or West? Big town, little town? List 10 reasons why.

• Pick a company. What companies relevant to your stated interests are located in the area that you have chosen? Gather all the possible information about them. Go beyond looking at records and stock prices. Learn the terminology of the field. Find out who are the key men in the company. Read their speeches and evaluate them.

You are now prepared to see the recruiter, present your case and get the job. You know the company, the exact job, and why you want it.

A Cake for Washington's Birthday

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

A good dessert to celebrate a birthday in George Washington's day was usually a pound cake. One recipe of the time called for 16 eggs with four additional yolks and pounds of sugar, flour and butter.

But times have changed and so have recipes. This 1967 Washington's Birthday Cake is a mocha pound cake flavored with coffee and cocoa and with cherry preserves and Coffee Whipped Cream frosting.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY CAKE

- 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 1/2 cup breakfast cocoa (not instant)
- 3 tablespoons instant coffee powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup (1/2 lb.) soft butter or margarine
- 1 1/4 cups sugar
- 1 cup eggs (4 or 5, depending on size)
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- Cherry Preserves
- Coffee Whipped Cream*

Mix and sift flour, cocoa, instant coffee powder and salt. Cream butter or margarine to consistency of mayonnaise. Beat in sugar gradually. Continue to beat until light and fluffy. Add eggs gradually, beating well after each addition. (Mixture may curdle slightly.) Add vanilla. Stir in flour mixture. Mix just until smooth. Spoon into greased, wax paper-lined loaf pan, 11 1/4 x 4 1/2 x 2 1/2 inches. Bake at 325 degrees about 1 hour, or until cake tests done. Cool in pan 10 minutes. Remove cake to rack, peel off waxed paper. Finish cooling. Cut loaf in thirds lengthwise. Put together again with cherry preserves. Frost top and sides with Coffee Whipped Cream. Chill. To serve, slice on the

Beats Aren't As Bohemian As They Were

ROMANTIC REBELS — An informal history of Bohemianism in America. By Emily Hahn. Houghton, Mifflin. $5.95.

Here is a journey through the past — mostly the literary past, rather than the artistic — to review the exotic flowering of the rebellious impulse in American intellectual life.

The term Bohemian has become quaintly archaic after all these years, and the old familiar haunts of the rebels who were dedicated to defiant freedom of thought have been taken over by the beatniks, who seem to be dedicated to disengagement, disaffiliation and non-think.

Miss Hahn is an able guide for this sentimental journey. She begins with the period well before the Civil War; of course the starting point is New York's Greenwich Village — "and you ought to have seen it in the old days," before neon lights, tourist traps, espresso bars, guitar-pluckers and stringy-haired characters took over.

The author disagrees with the idea that Poe was one of our first Bohemians, because when he was reasonably sane, his personal life was too conventional. She also asserts that although Whitman's poetry was championed in the Village, he wasn't really part of the scene there.

She pays her respects to the vigor of the rebellion in the West, where Bret Harte, Joaquin Miller, Ambrose Bierce and many others got their start. She contrasts the lone wolf Lafcadio Hearn with the real wolf James G. Huxley. She recalls the turn toward political dogma in the career of Jack London, and the founding in Chicago of one of the most famous of the little magazines.

In more recent times there were the doggedly eccentric Maxwell Bodenheim; a whole crew of radical reformers, socialists and agitators, and the kiss-and-tell sophisticates led by Edna Millay.

Miss Hahn concludes with a rather melancholy theme that things aren't what they used to be on the Bohemian front.

The Way to Beauty

NEW YORK — (NEA) — A look into the local flower shop brought a glimpse of mimosa, half hidden behind the carnations.

Mimosa is always a pleasant sign this time of year because it brings one thought to mind: Spring is on its way.

And that means (for most women, anyway) figure-trimming.

A Swiss-made garment designed to help women and men reduce quickly has recently been introduced in this country.

This slimming "underwear" produces a saunalike effect on the wearer, causing her to perspire away excess liquid from the body tissues.

The material stimulates the body, inducing it to pour out profuse perspiration.

The excess fluid in the tissues is consumed and the pads of fat broken down automatically.

At the same time, the makers claim the circulation of blood throughout the skin is improved and the skin itself is purified, refreshed and strengthened.

A reducing process begins which is particularly effective, but gentle in action. It eliminates the excess fat and water from your tissues by external processes, freeing you from pounds and inches.

The fascinating thing about this method is that you decide just how long and on what parts of the body you need trimming.

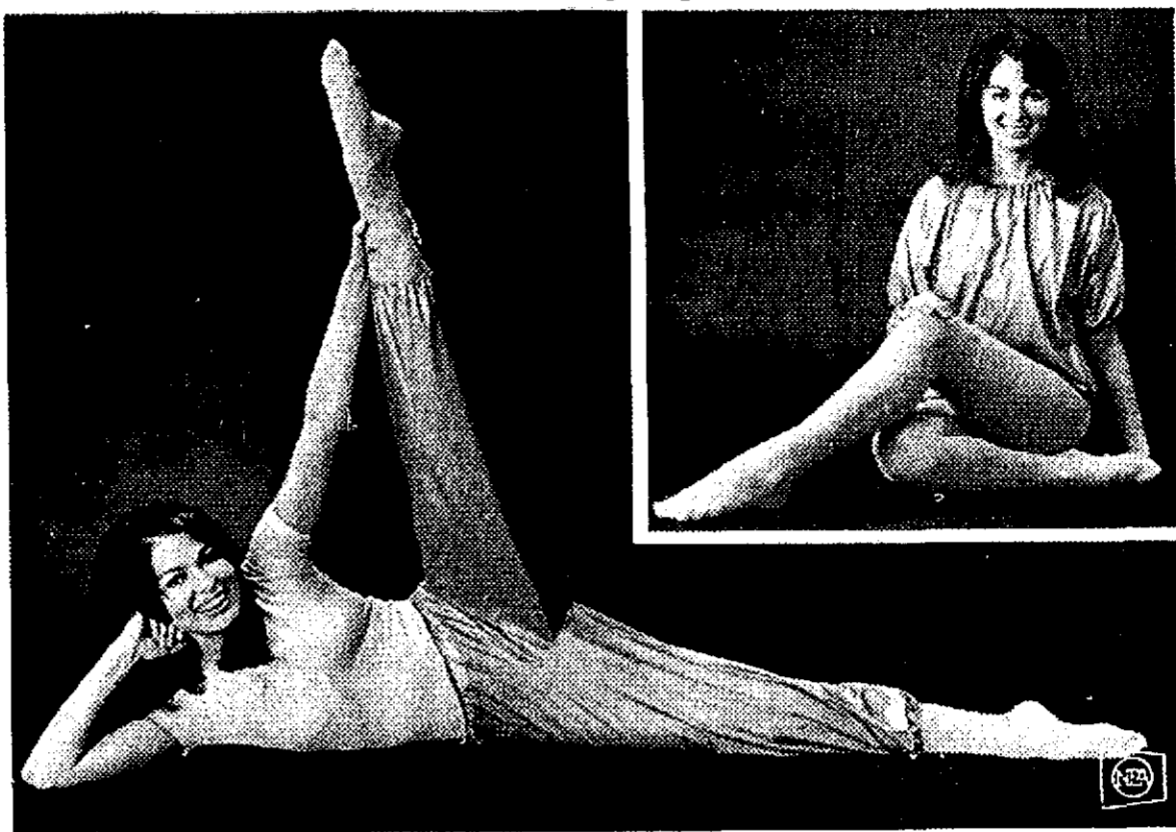

The sauna underwear may be worn while sleeping, exercising or doing routine chores. It should not cling closely but should be rather loose and blousy.

It's also advisable to wear something under your sauna suit to absorb the perspiration.

The lightweight plastic silver suit comes in four sections. The strapless bathing suit model helps if your waist, hips and buttocks are too big.

If you need to reduce your waist, hips and thighs there is a model that fits below the bust right down to the knees.

Portugal is the westernmost nation of continental Europe.

SAUNA SLIMMING "UNDERWEAR" would appear to be the answer for women with weight problems in particular areas. If your hips, thighs and legs need reducing (above), slip into bloomer style pants. If your waist and bust are too big (insert), wear the shirt model. Fat from upper trunk and upper arm will disappear.

Lonesome George A Straight Man?

By DICK KLEINER
Hollywood Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Word filtering through the minicircuit from England has it that those reports of The Beatles' disbanding are premature. . . . They will make no more triumphant tours (or even nontriumphant ones) but they will continue to make movies together and they are now working on new single records and albums. . . . Dino DeLaurentis thinks Ann-Margret and Jean-Paul Belmondo would make a sizzling cinematic. . . . Joe E. Lewis describes the new breed of comedian—the cerebral kind—as "Guys who don't make you laugh—they make you shake your head and say, 'How true.'" . . . Doris Day goes to work at Universal for "The Epic of Josie" every morning and brings her four poodles with her. And Doris insists they understand when the assistant director calls for quiet.

George Gobel is costarring with Phil Foster in the national company of "The Odd Couple" and old Lonesome George isn't lonesome any more. Wherever they've played, they've packed them in. "In some of these towns," says George, "they come down from the forks of the creeks to see us."

This is his first crack at a straight play and he had no intention of doing it. When the offer first came, George listened to the money (not much, relatively speaking) and the terms (a whole year) he said, "I pass—Alice wouldn't let me out of the house that long."

"But," he adds, "I went to see the play and that was the trap. I just had to do it." Happily for the Gobel exchequer, along came some television commercials. These keep coining money while he's Odd Coupling at a reduced fee. So, he says, this will turn out to be his best fiscal year ever.

"And it turns out I like acting on the stage," he says. "I'd like to do more, except they hardly write many, many parts for a short guy with a crew cut. Let's face it, even with lifts I'm not Cary Grant."

The for-want-of-a-nail system works in reverse sometimes. Instead of little things leading to the loss of big things, sometimes they lead to a big thing—like a movie career. Consider the experience of Robert Colbert. Bob did a pilot film which didn't sell two years ago. It was called The Mayor and there are those who still say it was the best pilot ever made. But that is neither hither nor yare.

Anyhow, that unsold pilot was shown around and from these unpaid screenings Bob Colbert got eight offers for other series. "Picking which one to take," Bob says, "was like a Las Vegas roulette wheel."

He picked Time Tunnel—and none of the others ever got on the air. Time Tunnel made it and the kids seem to like it. It isn't a solid hit, but there's a 50-50 chance it will make it into next season.

"From Time Tunnel," Bob says, "came the contract which is now in my briefcase. When the lawyers finish with it, I'll probably sign it. It's a five-year feature film deal with 20th Century-Fox."

So Bob Colbert is heading for the top—and he traces it all back to a show which was never telecast.

Director Buzz Kulik rode a Los Angeles patrol car for three weeks getting ready to shoot his police movie, "Warning Shot."

"Anybody who wonders about whether the police do a job," Buzz says, "should ride with one of the cars for awhile. It's a great lesson."

Joan Crosby's TV Notebook

By JOAN CROSBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
NEW YORK (NEA)—Barry Nelson has discovered that a human being does, too, need a few hours with nothing to do.

And so, after 3½ years, he is leaving NBC Radio's Monitor after his Feb. 5 broadcast.

This, however, does not leave him without work. He is appearing on Broadway in "Cactus Flower." He will be seen on Passworld the day he leaves Monitor. "The Borgia Stick," a film he made in New York for NBC-TV's world premiere, will be telecast March 14.

"The Borgia Stick" is an adventure drama, with most of the actors involved in some kind of illegalities. But not Nelson, the clean-cut, all-American sophisticate.

"I have moved out of all that," he said. "I hold champagne glasses these days."

One of Broadway's best light comedians, Nelson says the trick in keeping a performance fresh in a long-run hit like "Cactus Flower" is to "think funny." Instead of the same old joke, "you must find different ways of telling it. It's a mistake on the part of actors who think you must set your performance on opening night and then keep it like that. "Actors become insecure once the director is not around, and so, too many become rigid once a play has opened. But that lacks adventure. Acting is a creative field and there is no room for rigidity and stultification of your thoughts."

"There are lots of possibilities for error in this theory of mine. But an actor must use good taste, which means constantly editing yourself. You must not be seduced by the laughter and philanthropic feeling of an audience ready to laugh too much when a show is an established comedy hit."

SPEED RIGGS

Say the name Speed Riggs to the average television viewer who has had a television set for more than 10 years, and chances are you'll hear "Sold American" in return.

Riggs, the most famous tobacco auctioneer in the country, is celebrating his 30th year in radio and television and is on his second tour of commercial duty for the American Tobacco Co.

Actually, his association with ATC was never severed. He was kept on a retainer, even though ATC changed its commercial image. But now Speed is back, facile-tongued as ever, and happy as a canary (a man who works for American can't be happy as a Lark).

"TV is the closest thing to my love for the auctioneering profession," said Riggs, who set a record when at the age of 19 he sold 784 baskets of tobacco in 42 minutes.

"A tobacco auctioneer is a man of color and dignity. He carries prestige and is regarded as a man of integrity in the South. I love auctioneering. Being a child of the depression, this was the only opportunity I had to pull myself out."

Or talk himself out.

Rice Pudding Is an American Classic

By GAYNOR MADDOX
 Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

If you were a lucky little girl or boy years ago, your mother probably made creamy rice pudding which she baked in a slow oven for a long, long time. It was smooth, velvety and wonderfully good. Sometimes she would serve it over stewed fruit, too. Remember? Often she added plump raisins and, for special occasions, chopped glace fruits.

There is no good reason, really, why you can't serve your family this American classic today. Even our very "cool" modern youngsters will enjoy it.

This pudding fits comfortably into a limited food budget. Rice is inexpensive. Also, by mixing instant nonfat dry milk, reliquified according to package directions, with an equal quantity of milk-drinking children. fresh whole milk, a very good milk results which can be used as a beverage or in cooking. This combination can cut the milk budget by one-third, a substantial saving for families with a lot of

RICE PUDDING—old favorite.

BAKED CREAMY RICE PUDDING
 2 cups reconstituted instant nonfat dry milk
 2 cups fresh whole milk
 ¼ cup uncooked regular white rice

½ cup sugar
 ½ teaspoon salt
 1 teaspoon nutmeg
 1 tablespoon butter

Reconstitute 2 cups instant nonfat dry milk according to directions on package. Mix with 2 cups fresh whole milk. Combine milk and remaining ingredients in a greased 1½-quart casserole. Bake in a moderate oven (325 degrees) for 2½ hours. Stir occasionally. Do not stir during the last half hour. Four to 6 servings.

Mrs. JFK Appears at a Benefit

NEW YORK (AP) — Mrs. John F. Kennedy made her first scheduled public appearance Monday night since the controversy developed last December over publication of the book, "The Death of a President." She was at New York's Griller Club to help promote a book that will be sold to aid flood-ravaged Florence, Italy.

Paneling, Partitions Can Brighten Your Basement

By MR. FIX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Every homeowner at one time or another gets a yen to finish his basement, to make honest-to-gosh rooms in all that space. He thinks of more than just painting the concrete walls another color. He considers instead paneled walls.

And he considers also the business of partitioning the basement into real rooms.

The job begins with erecting frames for the paneling you plan to use. In the case of paneling over the concrete walls around the basement's perimeter, some people use furring strips (thin strips of wood fastened directly to the concrete) rather than framing a separate wall.

This may seem easier but often turns out harder because concrete walls can be rough and uneven. Separate framing provides absolutely square and plumb surfaces. Further, your basement will be warmer and drier with a few inches of air space between paneling and concrete.

Basement walls, even partition walls, offer no major structural problems since they are not load-bearing walls—that is they do not support any weight overhead.

The framing consists of a floor plate which is a 2x4 flat on the floor; a top plate, a second 2x4 nailed to the ceiling; and vertical 2x4s which are called studs. These are nailed between floor and top plates.

Vertical studs can be kept rigid by putting in horizontal crosspieces about halfway up. These are sometimes called fire stops.

Pick Proper Type

Before starting work, determine what kind of paneling you will use, what sizes of it are available. This can change your framing plans.

Generally studs are erected on 16-inch centers. This means 16 inches from the center of one stud to the center of the next, not 16 inches in between. Or you can measure from the side of one stud to the corresponding side of the other.

Measuring will go faster and be more accurate if you cut a length of lumber that is the proper dimension and use this for marking of stud location.

Begin by nailing the top plate to the ceiling beams. Place the floor plate in approximate position but do not fasten. Measure, cut and fit the corner studs. Nail these to the top plate and then to the floor plate. Do this by driving in the nails at an angle, a process known as toenailing.

Check Studs Carefully

With the vertical corner studs in place, check them with a plumb line or level. Move the floor plate one way or the other until the stud is absolutely vertical. Then fasten the floor plate in place. Available are special masonry nails that can be driven through the wood and into the floor.

The framing is finished by putting in the remaining studs. Do not cut them all at once. Measure and cut each one individually. Floors and ceiling beams may be uneven.

Southern Democrats Likely to Keep the Balance of Power Mao Claims Victory in Bloody Fight

By JOHN RODERICK

TOKYO (AP) — Peking Radio claimed today that Mao Tse-tung has seized control of Manchuria's Heilongjiang Province in a bloody struggle won by the army with the help of a repentant anti-Mao party chief.

Heilongjiang was the third of China's 23 provinces and autonomous regions over which the Maoists via their official propaganda outlets have claimed control, along with the cities of Shanghai, Peking, Kwelyang, Taiyuan and Tsingtau.

These areas—Shansi and Kwelchow are the other provinces—have less than 60 million of China's more than 700 million people.

There was no way of determining whether the anti-Mao forces of President Liu Shao-chi control the rest of China, or of determining the reliability of the Maoist claims either. Control of some other areas has been claimed by pro-Mao wall posters in Peking, but these claims have not been repeated by such official organs under Mao's control as Radio Peking, the New China News Agency or the Peking People's Daily.

Peking Radio said the seizure of Heilongjiang was carried out Jan. 31 by a Maoist revolutionary committee with the aid of Sung Jen-chung, first secretary of the Northeast China Bureau and a follower of President Liu who defected to Mao's side.

The broadcast said Sung confessed he had "committed errors in the Mao line" but had now corrected his mistakes.

"I stand for the revolutionary rebels," he was quoted as saying. "Together we will fight to gain ultimate victory."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite their second party caucus defeat—this one on restoring seniority to Rep. John Bell Williams — Southern Democrats still are likely to hold a balance of House power in this session of Congress.

Williams, a 20-year House veteran, said the vote against him Wednesday "ran the South out of the Democratic party." It almost certainly did not ease the way for liberals to deal with the Southerners on legislation.

The Democratic caucus two years ago stripped Williams of his No. 2 ranking on the House Commerce Committee after he backed Republican Barry Goldwater for president in 1964.

Williams' attempt to regain his ranking failed 134 to 100. It was the second time this session that the caucus rebuffed a Southern Democrat. Last month, party members assigned a New York liberal, Jacob H. Gilbert, to the Ways and Means Committee over Omar Burleson, a conservative Texan.

Both caucuses were controlled by a group of liberals known as the Democratic Study Group. The group claims a membership of about 140, enough to call the shots in a party caucus but not in the House itself.

The Southerners, about 50 in number, are hard-core conservatives who seldom in the past voted for legislation bearing a liberal tag. But in recent years their defection from administration ranks was offset by the presence of many more liberal Democrats and fewer Republicans.

In the House this year there are fewer Democrats and more Republicans than in the last Congress. Although the Democrats have a numerical edge, they lack control on domestic issues whenever they lose as many as 50 votes from their party ranks.

Most leaders of both parties agree on the mathematics likely to be involved whenever the issue boils down to a battle between conservatives and liberals on nondefense legislation.

There now are 246 Democrats and 187 Republicans, with two Democratic vacancies. Partly offsetting the defections in the Democratic ranks is the presence of an estimated 15 liberal Republicans who often cross party lines in House voting.

LBJ Reply to Peace Hint Likely

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson may reply today to North Vietnam's latest hint of peace talks — one reportedly sent to the United States this week through neutral countries.

Johnson is expected to deal with the issue at a mid-afternoon news conference.

The Hanoi government reportedly sent word to the United States this week that two policy statements made in Hanoi last weekend on the possibility of peace talks should get serious consideration in Washington.

The maneuver was carried out through neutral governments which urged the State Department to look carefully at the statements. The neutrals reportedly said they acted at the suggestion of North Vietnam.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk said Wednesday the long-sustained aerial assault is hurting North Vietnam and took the line that the major objective of Hanoi's diplomatic campaign now is to get the bombing stopped.

Some U.S. officials, however, saw some possibility that peace talks might result.

Any move in this direction would confront Johnson with a policy decision on whether a promise of direct discussions on peace between the United States and North Vietnam would be a sufficient reason for ending the bombing.

The United States has said any halt to the bombing must also bring some Communist de-escalation of the military effort.

Both statements published in Hanoi said if the United States would stop bombing there could be talks between it and North Vietnam.

This stopped short of a Hanoi commitment to talk but U.S. officials, it is understood, are trying to find out through diplomatic channels whether this is an indication of possible North Vietnamese readiness for peace discussions.

In the midst of these speculations, the White House said late Wednesday that Johnson is unlikely to send Congress a message — at least in the immediate future — on Southeast Asia.

This stirred talk that perhaps the situation is so delicate the President judges it unwise to send a special message. White House spokesman Tom Johnson denied this, however, saying previous reports from the President and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara had adequately covered the subject.

Faubus Denies Receiving Penal Report

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP) —

Former Gov. Orval Faubus, in an exclusive by-lined story in today's Jonesboro Evening Sun, said he did not receive a copy of the State Police investigation of conditions at Tucker Prison Farm until the day before he left office.

Faubus said he received the report too late to do anything about it and that he believed it was planned that way.

The former governor wrote that Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller received a copy of the 67-page report weeks before he took office. Faubus said he knew who gave the report to Rockefeller but he declined to identify him. He called it a "one-sided story... in many respects exaggerated and perhaps in some instances false."

"The bad situation at Tucker Prison Farm developed during my administration," Faubus said. "However, may I point out that we took action as soon as the report (of trouble at Tucker) reached us. It was our investigation, not Mr. Rockefeller's. It was our corrective action, not Mr. Rockefeller's action. He merely released the report several weeks after he had it."

Senate Against Bill to Keep State Workers Out of Campaigns

By GEORGE F. BARTSCH

Associated Press Writer
LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The bill was intended to keep state employees out of politics, but as drafted by the administration, it would have prohibited unpaid members of state commissions from having so much as bumper stickers on their automobiles.

"This is more stringent than the federal government's Hatch Act," snorted Sen. Dan T. Sprick of Little Rock.

"It's the most poorly drafted piece of legislation I have seen in 18 years in the legislature," added Sen. Dan White of Fort Smith.

And with that prelude, the Arkansas Senate gave its first administration measure only 17 of the 18 votes required for passage, with 15 votes against it.

Within an hour, however, Sprick, White and Sen. Max Howell of Little Rock drafted and introduced a bill correcting what they had opposed in the measure introduced by Sen. J. Lee Bearden of Leachville.

It covers only paid state employees and spells out its restrictions: No political campaign management or fund raising, and no use of official authority to interfere with an election or influence its results.

The penalties remained the same: Immediate dismissal and two years of ineligibility for further state employment. Retained, too, was a provision that any employee who engages in those activities within three months of quitting his job or being fired is ineligible for state employment for six months after ceasing his political participation.

Excluded from the provisions of the bill, as in Bearden's, are the state's seven constitutional officers, public school teachers and elected members or employees of the legislative or judicial branches of government.

The only other major variation, in fact, is the inclusion of state college or university personnel.

"I don't think we'll have any trouble with this one," Howell said.

Sen. Guy (Mutt) Jones of Conway had no trouble with Bearden's bill.

"I've got to vote for it to be consistent," he told the Senate, "because I'm about to ask you to vote for another one that will give our state employees some protection and security."

Jones' bill would create a seven-member state Civil Service Commission and bring another 8,000 state employees under the merit system that now covers some 2,500.

The Senate approved it 28-2. State employees would be hired on the basis of competitive examinations and could not be fired without cause, Jones said.

WR Vetoes Bonus Bill; Favors Raise

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller, declaring he never made a commitment regarding a surplus of some $2.79 million in public school funds, vetoed Wednesday a bill that would have used the money to provide teachers a bonus.

The governor made public Tuesday his intention to veto the measure and said he expected no "squawk" over it.

However, leaders of the Arkansas Education Association and the Arkansas Rural Education Association were critical of Rockefeller's action.

The governor said in a veto message to the General Assembly that the money was needed for him to fulfill a campaign promise to give teachers an average $500 raise in each of the next two years.

"The projected general revenue for the next biennium would not permit $500 per year average increases for teachers unless we are able to combine them with the so-called 'surplus'..." he said.

"It is my judgment that the teachers benefit more in the long run by having their basic salary increased than by the receipt of 'bonuses' which necessarily will not be available in future years," he said.

Rockefeller said in his veto message that his action "will affect all the bills dealing both with reductions in taxes and other revenues and also with increased costs."

Rep. Sherman Williams of Little Rock, author of the bill, said he had not decided what to do now.

But, still before the House is a Senate bill that would use the money as a bonus for teachers plus all other school employees who must be certified by the state Education Department.

Sen. Morrell Galtright of Pine Bluff, author of the Senate measure, said he was now inclined to ask for a vote should his bill pass the House and later draw a veto from Rockefeller. Most other senators said they were inclined to override a veto but one said that "overriding becomes a pretty grave matter and I don't know that the bonus is that grave."

Marines Kill 68 in New Drive

By ROBERT TUCKMAN

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — U. S. Marines today reported killing 68 Communist troops in the initial phases of two new drives in the northern part of South Vietnam.

In action elsewhere, American, Korean and South Vietnamese units claimed nearly 150 enemy dead in a series of clashes up and down the country.

U. S. military headquarters announced that 131 Americans were killed and 822 were wounded in action last week, a small increase over the previous week's toll of 123 killed and 716 wounded. South Vietnamese headquarters listed 157 government troops killed last week, a sharp drop from the 340 of a week earlier. A total of 979 enemy killed was reported by the Americans, a big drop from 1,681 the week before.

U. S. officials reported a high rate of surrender by the Viet Cong and its sympathizers continued in January. In the first 28 days of the month, officials said, 2,272 came over to the allied side under the Chieu Hoi (Open Arms) program, continuing the trend of 2,505 in November and 2,516 in December.

The American command announced that U. S. troop strength in South Vietnam rose to 404,000 as of last Saturday, an increase of 4,000 during the week. At least 3,200 more combat troops have arrived since last Saturday.

Enemy forces also increased last week, U. S. headquarters said, to an estimated 284,000. This was 3,000 more than the estimate the week before, but there was no explanation of the increase.

In the Iron triangle northwest of Saigon, where a force of some 30,000 U. S. and South Vietnamese troops last week ended a 19-day scorched-earth operation to eliminate the Viet Cong stronghold, a small security patrol of the U. S. 1st Infantry Division suffered heavy casualties in a clash with a Viet Cong squad. The U. S. patrol was of squad size, a U. S. spokesman said, or from eight to 14 men.

One of the new U. S. Marine drives was launched Wednesday as a multibattalion search-and-destroy sweep 19 miles southwest of Da Nang. The drive, called Operation Independence, has resulted in 17 enemy killed so far, a U. S. spokesman said.

The other new Marine operation, called De Soto, was begun last Thursday 24 miles southeast of Quang Ngai City on the north central coast. The spokesman reported 51 Communists killed so far in the battalion-size operation.

Marine casualties were termed light in both new operations.

In the air offensive against North Vietnam, heavy fog and cloud cover continued Wednesday to limit U. S. bombing raids.

American pilots flew 57 missions, largely in the southern end of the country. They included several strikes in the demilitarized zone.
